USED RELAY OF AUTOES IN ROCKVIEW ESCAPE

Two Convicts Conceal Prison Garb With Stolen Raincoats.

SEEN NEAR HARRISBURG

Another daring escape from the western penitentiary was consummated last Saturday evening between 6 and 8 o'clock, when Charles Wasser and John Adraini cut through the wire fence surrounding the cell block and disappeared.

After effecting their escape, the pair came directly across country to Bellefonte, where they gained access to the garage of Oscar Zimmerman, in Bush's Addition, and stole two light raincoats. They then evidently came in Water street as far as Decker Brother's garage where they discovered a Ford touring car parked along the curb and drove off in it. This car was later found, abandoned, at Reedsville. It is reported that another car was stolen in Lewistown and left along the road near Harrisburg, where still another car was seized. The last heard of the two men was at a small town nearby Lancaster.

Wasser was committed from Mercer County with a sentence of 3 to 6 years on a change of larceny. He is 21 years old, 5ft, 10¼ in., weight 136 pounds. Adraini was committed from Allegheny county, with a sentence of from 2½ to 5 years for an attempt to rob and kill. He is 26 years old, height 5ft. 10¾ in., and weighs 141.

GOVERNOR INTERVENED.

Phoned Rockview at 2.30 in Morning Postponing Execution.

A slender line of wire stretching from the capitol at Harrisburg to Depuy Warden Healy's house at Rockview was all that saved the life of Antonio Caliento, convicted murderer of Allegheny county, scheduled to be electrocuted Monday morning. All preparations had been made for the doomed man to pay the extreme penalty, when Warden Healy was roused from sleep at 2:30 o'clock in the morning by the voice of Governor Pinchot ordering that the execution be postponed.

This is the first time since the installation of the electric chair at Rockview that an execution has been stayed in such an unusual manner. Mr. Healy said that he did not know why the temporary reprieve had been granted Caliento, and that no new date had been set for the execution.

SENTENCE COMMUTED

Life Imprisonment Decree for Elmer Johnson, Story Writer.

Elmer Johnson, the Allegheny county murderer, who was originally to have been executed April 14 and received a stay until May 5, has finally had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. Johnson is a short story writer and, during his stay in the Allegheny county jail, has been keeping himself and his fellow prisoners in luxury from the proceeds of his stories, written while awaiting execution. The reason advanced by the pardon board for the commutation of his sentence was that, as his two confederates in the case only got second degree murder trials and sentences of six years in the penitentiary, it was not fair to impose upon Johnson the extreme penalty.

HILLER PROPERTY RESOLD

Walter M. Cohen Purchases High Street Dwelling.

On Monday of this week the Hiller property on High Street was purchased by Walter M. Cohen from H. J. Thompson, of Curwensville.

The new owner has, as yet, made no plans for the disposition of his purchase, and for the present will continue to let various offices and apartments to the persons now occupying them.

No Council Meeting.

Due to the indisposition of the president, John S. Walker, and the absence of several other members, so that there was not a quorum present, the regular semi-monthly meeting of Council scheduled for Monday evening was postponed until the next regular date and all business was held over until then.

School Boy's Condition Good.

Evan Evoch, the 10 year old boy, who was run over by an automobile last Tuesday, is reported by the hospital to be greatly improved. He has recovered the use of his speech and hearing, which he had lost for a short time after the accident.

PINCHOT SNOWED UNDER FOR NATIONAL DELEGATE

Governor Defeated by Strassburger Upward of 225,000,

WINS COUNTY BY 200

Featuring Tuesday's primary election was the overwhelming defeat of Gov. Pinchot in the State for Republican national delegate-at-large. Ralph Beaver Strassburger, of Montgomery County, who led the fight against the Governor on the issue that Pinchot was not loyal to the Republican party, was elected a delegate by upward of 225,000.

Philadelphia and Allegheny counties, also the populous coal mining and manufacturing sections of the State, rolled up tremendous majorities against Pinchot. The Governor banked on support in the rural counties which failed to materialize, The vote defeating him was so large as to fairly stun the Governor and Mrs. Pinchot and the Pinchot appointees and other political agents throughout the State.

This is probably the first time in the history of Pennsylvania where a Republican Governor who actively aspired to be elected a delegate-at-large lacked sufficient strength to win at the polls. The Governor blamed his defeat on the "wet" forces.

The seven Republican delegates-at-large elected from Pennsylvania follow:

United States Senator G. W. Pepper.

United States Senator D. A. Reed.

Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon.

Republican State Chairman Harry Baker.

Mrs. J. Willis Martin.

Congressman W. S. Vare.

Ralph B. Strassburger.

Republicans in the State renominated Superior Court Judge Frank M. Trexler, of Lehigh County, who had no opposition. Auditor General Samuel S. Lewis was nominated for State Treasurer, and General Edward Martin, of Washington County, was nominated for Auditor General over William Conner, of Pittsburgh.

Interest locally centered on the vote for Strassburger and Pinchot in Centre County, the Governor apparently leading by about 280. Pinchot lost Bellefonte borough by 18, despite active canvassing in his behalf by some of his personal appointees. In the North Ward, where the strongest work was done for him by his appointees, the best he could accomplish was a tie vote with Strassburger, each having 109. Strassburger carried the South Ward by 17 and the West Ward by 1. No work was done for Strassburger in any of the three wards. In fact, the only preliminary canvassing or work at the polls for any candidate was that for Pinchot.

Centre County gave substantial margins for Mrs. Ella Mountz, of Clearfield County, and James A. Connelly, of McKean County, for district national delegates. Their election in the Twenty-third Congressional district is reported to be assured.

Laird Holmes, of State College, had no opposition for Republican nomination for the Legislature. He polled a complimentary vote for the Democratic nomination, also. The Democrats, however, nominated former County Commissioner Wm. H. Noll, of Pleasant Gap, by the use of "stickers." Mr. Noll had declined to become a candidate by filing the customary petition, but friends decided to disregard his wishes and placed him on the ballot, anyhow. The presumption is that he will not withdraw, but on the other hand will wage an active fight. He is looked upon as one of the most adroit men in politics in Centre County.

Congressman Wm. I. Swoope, of Clearfield, was renominated by the Republicans of the 23rd District.

The only Democratic contest at the primaries was that between Oscar Gray, of Bellefonte, and Larry Redding, of Snow Shoe, for State Committeeman. Gray had the Zerby-Taylor element support and was elected by upward of 90. Gray was re-elected Democratic County Chairman.

On the Republican side Harry B. Scott, of Philipsburg, was re-elected to the Republican State Committee, without opposition. Wilson I. Fleming, of Bellefonte, had no opposition for election as Republican County Chairman. It is likely that the present Chairman, L. Frank Mayes, will call a meeting of the Republican County Committee, tender his resignation and ask that the committee formally elect Mr. Fleming to the vacancy. Mr. Mayes desires to devote his time exclusively to business interests.

OVER TOP FOR HOSPITAL

Committee Confident $100,000 Mark Will be Exceeded.

At the regular noon luncheon of Kiwanis, on Tuesday, there was no flagging of interest, or lack of determination to finish the job of putting the drive for $100,000 for the hospital over the top.

The facts that the campaign director, Mr. Roy, has departed and that the date for the formal ending of the drive has passed abate nothing. Kiwanis set out to do the work and is not going to stop until it is complete.

Reports from all of the county, except the State College district and Snow Shoe show that the fund has crossed the $80,000 mark.

State College, which includes College, Harris, Ferguson, Patton and Halfmoon townships, reported about $10,000 in sight and expects to give $15,000 when its final report is made at the luncheon next Tuesday.

Snow Shoe will not report for some time, because the mines in that section are not operating and it is the opinion of the lieutenants out there that the present is not propitious for their drive. They are confident that with normal business conditions they will have no trouble in raising their quota of $4000.00

If the College and Snow Shoe come through the goal will be reached and passed, for every day unexpected checks are coming in from former Centre countians who are living in distant States.

Rev. Wilson P. Ard, president of Kiwanis, was honored at the Tuesday meeting, by being chosen delegate to the International convention of Kiwanians at Denver, Col., in June. The nominating committee named only one candidate and its selection was unanimously approved.

The Tuesday luncheon was dynamic in more ways than enthusiasm for hospital success. It was electrified by Kiwanian Blair—not by song or speech, however. He had secreted an electric wire under all of the tables and so completed contacts that when the members picked up their knives and forks all of them got an electric shock. Everything they touched was charged and it was quite a while before the cause was disclosed.

The attendance prize was won by Kiwanian John Knisely.

Rented Valentine Farm.

Thomas Beaver and Harry Lutz have rented and will operate the George Valentine farm, nearby Bellefonte, for the coming year.

WOMAN'S SOBS GAINED PAROLE FOR HUSBAND

Family Without Support, Gains Sympathy of All

WIFE TOLD SAD STORY

There was considerable surprise in evidence at a special session of court held by Judge Quigley on Saturday morning, when Thomas Parnell, of Rush Township, who admitted that he had violated the prohibition laws, was released from jail on his own recognizance and given a chance to make good by next September. There was considerable sympathy for the young miner's wife, who was in court, and their three small children, one of whom was with her.

Judge Quigley has always treated boot leggers with no sympathy, generally imposing a fine of $500 and a salty jail sentence. The evidence in this case, however, was such as to put it in a different class and those who were in court heartily endorsed the decision of the Court.

Parnell is crippled, having very little use of his right arm which was severely injured in an accident several years ago. There has been sickness in the home and work has not been available during the winter. Rather than see his family in want, he risked bootlegging to secure a livelihood and "Keep the wolf away from the door," he told the Court.

Mrs. Parnell was called to testify and sobbed continuously so that it was necessary to have her repeat her answers several times in some instances. She told of how she and the children have suffered since the husband and father has been in jail and the destitute circumstances in the home. Among her statements was one to the effect that they were unable to eke out a living so that her husband had decide to quit just before he was taken into custody.

Judge Quigley was impressed by the story of the young couple and apparently felt that there was something worthwhile in the young miner, who promised to secure work, pay his bills, and walk the straight and narrow path. In giving him an opportunity to reform, the Judge told him frankly that it was up to him to make good and in the event of his failure to do so he would be brought back and dealt with as the circumstances warranted.

Hospital Campaign Fund.

Subscribers to this fund are requested to pay the first installment, one-fourth of the subscription, due May 1, 1924, by sending check to H. E. Fenlon, Treasurer Hospital Campaign Fund, Bellefonte, Pa., or by depositing the amount to the credit of such Treasurer's account at the subscriber's local bank. Subscribers who prefer to do so may now pay their entire subscription to this fund by remittance or depositing in bank in the same way. This general notice is given because, owing to great detail work, the committee in charge may not be able to send out notices to each subscriber by May 1st. But this should not delay payments then due. Co-operation by subscribers in making prompt payments will be highly appreciated.

JOHN BLANCHARD,
Chairman, Committee in Charge.

Install Additional Motor.

The Pennsylvania Match Company, of Bellefonte, which is a part of the Federal Match Corporation, recently completed the installation of the last electric motor, which will replace the old steam equipment. The company began four years ago to install electric power. Gradually they added more electric motors until now they have their entire plant equipped with electric power. One of the modern features of this local plant is the tempering of the air by refrigeration.

Stover Bakery Sold.

The bakery located in the Bush Arcade and known as the "Bellefonte Baking Co.," owned by Howard W. Stover, was sold on Monday to Earl O. Armstrong, proprietor of Armstrong's Meat Market, and Harry Smith, of Pleasant Gap. The new owners, it is understood, will, for the present at least, continue to operate the shop along the same lines as the former proprietor.

Extending Power Line.

The Keystone Power Corporation has begun the work of extending its high tension lines to Oak Hall Lime and Stone Company. This company is completely electrifying its plant at Oak Hall, in order to take care of the increasing demand for its product.

SUNDAY SCLOOL WORK DISCUSSED AT MEETING

County Workers Hold Interesting Session in Local Y.

URGE FAMILY ALTARS

A very interesting conference was conducted on Monday afternoon and evening in the Community Room at the Y. M. C. A., Bellefonte, for the promotion of the Sunday School work in Centre County. There were not as many districts represented as anticipated, partly due to bad roads, but all who attended were very much inspired by wonderful messages presented by the speakers.

President I. L. Foster presided at the conference. Vocal selections were rendered by Miss Shuey and Mrs. Krader. Supper was served at 6 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. to the delegates. The evening session closed at 9:30. Much interest was shown in the drive to establish family altars in Centre County, similar to the campaign which has just closed in Lycoming County, and the speakers emphasized the great need of more intensive religious teaching and training in the home than is at present evident. John L. Holmes, of State College, Republican nominee for the Legislature, emphasized the need of higher ideals in the homes and among young people.

At the close of the conference a vote of thanks was passed to the Y. M. C. A. for the use of the building and entertainment during the conference.

Following is the program:

AFTERNOON

2:30 Devotionals, Rev. M. M. Drumm.

3:00 "The Need of Religious Education in the Home," Rev. E. E. McKelvey.

3:30 "The Peril of Denominationalism," Rev. Fraser Metzger.

4:00 "Pointers for Music in Sunday School," Miss Shuey, Mrs. Alberta Krader.

4:30 Questions Box

4:45 Finances

5:00 Address, B. M. McGarvey.

5:30 Lunch

EVENING

7:00 Song Service

7:30 "The Sunday School as a Feeder to the Church," Rev. A. M. Schmidt.

8:00 "The School of Religious Education," Prof. H. M. Battenhouse.

8:30 Address, B. M. McGarvey

9:00 Discussion of work.

9:30 Adjournment.

BANK INCREASED CAPITAL

Bellefonte Trust Company Provides Larger Working Fun

Due to the increased business of the Bellefonte Trust Company the officers and directors have found it necessary to issue 750 shares of new capital stock which, selling at $150.00 per share, will give the bank an additional working capital of $112,500.

Treasurer N. E. Robb, in a statement to this paper, said that the bank desired to keep its earnings in Centre County, as far as possible, and was buying in all the stock held outside the county to be resold to local people, and that, aided by the increased working capital, as stated above, the bank will be in a position to offer better service to its customers than ever before.

Ford Runs Amuck

While Charles Ray, an employe of the Keystone Power Corporation, was in the house of Miles Barr, reading the light meter, he left the company's Ford standing along the curb. When he came out, he was much perturbed to find the car missing, but upon investigation discovered it completely upside down along the street opposite Mallory's blacksmith shop. It seems that the brake had slipped and the "flivver" started on a tour of its own. Pedestrians helped the driver right it, and "Lizzie" chugged merrily away, minus a top and windshield.

Some Lucky Anglers.

David Miller caught nine large trout last Saturday. One measured 21 inches and weighed 4 pounds. On last Thursday Willis Shuey caught a fine string of brook trout in Spring Creek. Four measured upward of one foot in length.

Constable Gillett Improving.

The condition of Constable H. H. Gillette, of Snow Shoe, who is alleged to have been struck on the head with a pick by Frank Auman, continues to improve, and there is probably no doubt now of his complete recovery.

Market Where Eskimos Buy and Sell Blubber

Here is shown a scene in an Eskimo blubber market, where the natives buy and sell needed products. Blubber is of course a principal product. In the photograph may be seen many walrus, valuable for their hides, their ivory tusks and their flesh, used as food by the natives. The tusks are used to make native implements while the skins are used to make summer houses.

Mounted Police Direct Empire

Canadian Force Covers Area of 1,432,000 Square Miles.

New York.—Lord Byng of Vimy, governor general and commander in chief of the Dominion of Canada, has just released the 1923 annual report of the royal Canadian mounted police, that brilliant force which has been guarding a geographical empire which extends from the temperate to the arctic zones, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific, since 1873.

Hon. Ernest LaPointe, minister in control, remarks in a letter of transmittal of less than thirty words that he is forwarding this routine document. Commissioner Cortlandt Starnes, in command of the force, is equally terse. But within those pages lie stories of daring and devotion to duty, of death and crime, and of a myriad of prosaic deeds faithfully performed by a dwindling body of brave men.

While the duties grew in volume last year the force grew smaller. The personnel lost 79 officers and men, and by last September the total strength was 58 officers, 1,000 noncommissioned officers and constables and 543 horses. This gives a personnel of 1,148, as compared with 1,671 in 1920. Three years before, moreover, there was almost twice as many horses.

But those who are left "carry on."

In the 12 months covered by the report, 16,463 cases were investigated and handled, and 2,863 convictions for crimes and misdemeanors were secured. The force handled 3,858 naturalization inquiries, besides a mass of detail for all other parts of the Dominion government.

Enforces Thirty-Five Laws.

"To a great extent we may be described as a handmaid to other departments," remarks Commissioner Starnes. Yea, verily, 20 of them were assisted in the past year, as in all previous ones.

The statutes which the royal Canadian mounted police help to enforce throughout the Dominion, and uphold single handed in the North, are as follows:

Animals contagious disease act, alien labor act, air board act, bankruptcy act, Chinese immigration act, customs act, Canadian temperance act, forest reserve and parks act, explosives act, fisheries act, Indian act, inland revenue act, income tax act, live stock pedigree act, militia act, migratory birds act, naturalization act, naval act, navigable waters protection act, Northwest game act, Northwest territories act, opium and narcotic drug act, post office act, penitentiaries act, pension act, railway act, radio telegraph act, secret commissions act, soldiers' settlement board act, special war revenue act, seed control act, ticket-to-leave act, war measures act.

For offenses against the person the police investigated and prosecuted whites and Indians under 17 sections of the Dominion criminal code; for offenses against property, 25; offenses against public order, 3; offenses against religions and morals, 7; miscellaneous justice (perjury and conspiracy), 2.

Hand of Law Is Everywhere.

Mere statistics, however, tell a dull tale, and in this instance they fail to give a full account of the royal Canadian mounted police, better known as the Northwest mounted police. For instance, they protect buildings belonging to the Dominion government; post guards on the offices of the receiver general in Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Victoria; furnished escort for harvesters' excursions; assisted Nova Scotia in raising a provincial constabulary; help Manitoba and Alberta control the fur trade; act as game wardens; co-operate with the civilian police in cities like Montreal, Vancouver, Halifax and St. John, which are out of their administrative sphere, in their fight against bootlegging, the narcotic drugs traffic, and white slavery, and a little matter like taking 131,369 finger prints in the course of a few years.

The police co-operate with the international bureau for the suppression of the white slave traffic, and assist Rev. John Chisholm in his system of "strangers' secretaries," etc., which guides young women to safety when they arrive from abroad, and in other ways help him, the report says.

"In combating the attempt by harpies of society to recruit dens of infamy."

Sergeant Blakeney tells of a thrilling adventure he and Corporal Caldwell and Constable Fahie had in cowing the captain and crew of a liquor-smuggling craft who greatly outnumbered them. And yo ho! 1,700 gallons of rum were sequestered—but the coup was so neatly turned that there were no "dead men's chests" for any jolly cutthroat to sit upon.

"An American seems to have been the principal behind the captain of the vessel," Blakeney says virtuously.

There was also the liquor seizure effected almost single-handed by Detective Sergeant F. Lucas, aboard the rakish steamship Bally Gally Head.

The report notes with regret that such crimes, and those mentioned in preceding paragraphs, are increasing. This is also true of counterfeiting, and the widespread conspiracies to defraud the government through the manipulations of exchange have caused an immense amount of extra work.

A good example of typical British celerity in handling crime is shown in a post office theft handled by Detective Sergeant L. McLauchlan. The $5,300 package was stolen on June 30; Sergeant McLauchlan took the case on July 3; two days later the guilty clerk confessed and the following day he was sentenced.

The standing of the police is revealed by this court incident in Montreal. Staff Sergeant E. C. P. Salt testified. Sergeant S. W. Zaneth came next:

"Sergeant Zaneth corroborated the previous witness. When cross-examined by Mr. Monette, Justice Wilson declared: 'I do not know whether it is absolutely necessary to cross-examine the witness if he corroborates the previous evidence en bloc. My experience of the royal Canadian mounted police is that they have always given evidence in the most loyal and upright manner.'

"'Certainly, your lordship,' replied counsel for the defense, 'I am of that opinion myself and gladly abandon the cross-examination.'"

Nor is there lacking a ceremonial duty now and then. We read:

"On the occasion of the visit to Vancouver of the late President Harding, in July, 1923, mounted escorts and orderlies were provided and other measures taken for the welfare of the party. Our services have been acknowledged in the most complimentary terms."

All of the foregoing achievements by the royal Canadian mounted police have been in addition to the purpose for which they were originally organized a half century ago—the maintenance of law and order in the bleak and trackless Northwest, where even to this day there are but 20,000 inhabitants scattered over an area of 1,432,000 square miles. That means a land, including the Yukon, half the size of the entire continental United States and ten times as great as New York, New Jersey and New England combined.

There the force is seen at its best. Stationed in lonely units of a little corporal's guard, and even less, these men uphold the majesty and dignity of the British empire. Isolated at strategic points across that broken plain which drains into the Arctic ocean, some parts of the region so bare that only moss and lichens grow, they perform the duties of police officers, magistrates, coroners, marriage license clerks, postmasters, veterinary inspectors, immigration officers, customs officers, collectors of royalties, mining recorders, timber and land agents, fishery inspectors, game wardens, inspectors of weights and measures, issue permits for the export of fur, administer estates of decedents, guard criminals and insane persons, minister to the sick, and even officiate at funerals when clergymen and priests cannot be present.

Such is their work, not to mention solitary and perilous journeys through the snows, across great stretches of water like Great Bear lake, or Great Slave lake, each covering more than 10,000 square miles; or down mighty rivers like the Mackenzie, the Arctic Red and the Hare Indian. Traveling absolutely alone, hunting down murderers, for days meeting only the polar bear, the arctic fox, the caribou or the musk ox, they go steadily on their way.

Undergo Hardships.

These arctic detachments are gradually being strengthened. In 1923 new ones were established at Cumberland gulf in Baffin island, and a temporary one at Baillie island, on the coast of the Arctic ocean.

To hold murder trials great distances must be traveled. One judicial party, for instance, left Quebec for Pond islet on July 7, and did not arrive until August 31. They got back October 4. Judge, prosecutor and counsel for the defense made the trip under escort of our heroes, and the crew of their vessel became the jury. The trial "was conducted with all the decorum of a Supreme court in civilization," and every step was carefully explained to the native Indians.

"After the termination of the trial, the judge addressed the entire Eskimo population outside the detachment, telling them what they had to expect from the representatives of the government, that they could expect kindness and protection from the police if they behaved well, but if they committed any crime they could expect to be punished.

It is mentioned quite casually that the force has not overlooked a report of the alleged murder of an Eskimo north of Repulse bay in the winter of 1920, and that the inaccessible region will be penetrated as soon as possible.

It is fitting to conclude this summary with an account of the experience of Inspector C. E. Wilcox and his party, who spent a lonely winter at Craig harbor. Their ship left them with supplies on August 28, 1922, and did not get back until August 6, 1923. The supply of game was inadequate, and no Eskimo would live there. So:

"The sun was last seen on October 25 and did not again appear until February 18, a period of 109 days of darkness and intense cold. Severe blizzards were frequent and during January the wind blew for 21 days without a break, at times with the violence of a gale; in a period of 304 days the wind blew strongly for 221 days, frequently compelling the men to remain indoors for days at a time. The coldest temperature was 51 degrees below zero. Patrols for a distance of 75 miles were made on foot. The discipline was excellent, and the men were cheerful throughout."

THE AMERICAN LEGION

HELPED FEED MANY HUNGRY CHILDREN

The daily task of feeding 160,000 children was but an incident in the post-war duties of Gilchrist B. Stockton, now post commander of the Edw. De Saussure post of the American Legion in Jacksonville, Fla.

Stockton, who was an attache of the American diplomatic mission in London at the outbreak of the war, resigned his post to enter the naval service, and was made an aide of Admiral Sims, serving in this capacity until April, 1919. Then the young Floridan was placed on an inactive status, and went to Vienna with the American relief administration. This was not his first experience in relief work, as he had volunteered for service with Herbert Hoover during the period of Belgian relief.

When the plans for the feeding of the starving children in Austria matured under Mr. Hoover's direction, Stockton was chosen for the post of chief of the mission and went about the great task with the enthusiasm which has characterized American relief workers.

He arrived in Vienna May 8, 1919, and immediately plunged into the service of salvaging human life. There the most unusual problems presented themselves to Stockton for solution. The mission had plenty of available supplies at Trieste, but the first problem was to get the stuff in Austria, from what had become a Yugo-Slavia port. The first trainload gotten through to Vienna was consigned to nobody—there was no consignment of it. Of the 83 carloads that were to come, 22 were lost, unloaded at wrong stations, sidetracked, some broken down. Despite these chaotic conditions, every car was located, and the net loss of the first shipment was less than 1 per cent. Stockton attributes the success of that to Providence alone.

For a while the traffic was undisturbed, then d'Annunzio broke loose in the Fiume, and Trieste lay under threat of being in the war zone. Not a car of food could be gotten out while that continued. So the port of entry for the Austrian food was changed to Rotterdam. This caused new problems of transportation, as it had to come by the Rhine, by rail, through troubled Germany, to Hamburg, thence by barges down the Danube. He surmounted every difficulty, even to dock handlers' strikes, as the only thing that went through Manheim during such a walkout time were American relief supplies.

A system of food cards was provided for the undernourished youngsters of Austria and Stockton says that the saddest sight of his life was to see some little one deprived of his food card after having been pronounced safely past malnutrition. Vienna was dotted with 43 American kitchens, the largest providing meals for 13,000 children. All this work was done under supervision of four Americans, one of whom was the youth from Jacksonville. A total of 11,000 Austrians were employed, the most of them volunteer workers.

Stockton is the scion of a famous family of Southern fighters and statesmen. He was a Rhodes scholarship man from Florida, and took his degree of law at Oxford. During the World war he attained the grade of senior lieutenant, U. S. N. He returned to Jacksonville in October, 1920, following his service in Austria, and has been identified with a real estate firm since that time. He has taken an active part in Legion affairs, both local and department.

Want Ten Commandments for U. S. Citizenship

Ten commandments for United States citizenship are sought by members of the American Legion in Minnesota through the Americanism commission of that body.

Prizes aggregating $100 have been offered through the Minnesota Council of Americanism for the best "commandments." In announcing the contest to the Legionnaires, R. K. Doe, committee chairman, wrote, "Centuries ago Moses formulated ten commandments, obedience to which was essential to the religious life. Might it not be essential to American citizenship?"

Pays Dues for Needy

Mayor William W. Campbell of Schenectady, N. Y., gave his unqualified endorsement to the American Legion when he recently forwarded money for dues of six needy veterans in the organization. A letter accompanying the money, said:

"There must be many service men here whose sympathies are entirely with the Legion movement, but who are restrained from joining by lack of funds. I trust that my small offer may spur some others who can afford it to aid these men to places in Legion membership. We all know that the Legion is a militant force for betterment in Schenectady as in every other American community, and anything we can do to promote its strength is a direct aid to good government."

Former Mayors George R. Lunn and O. F. Allen had previously given their endorsement to the organization.

EXPECT 45,000 TO ATTEND CONVENTION

In speaking of possible attendance at the national convention of the American Legion in St. Paul, Minn., in 1924, National Adjutant Russell G. Creviston told the Minnesotans that 45,000 are likely to visit the convention city. Mr. Creviston based his statement on the fact that St. Paul is practically in the heart of the Legion's stronghold of membership, and because of the proximity of the greater proportion of membership, he anticipates much larger delegations from the Middle West, in addition to the usual delegations from greater distances.

Proceeding on this estimate, plans for the sixth annual convention are proceeding rapidly. Local entertainment affairs are in charge of Justice Royal A. Stone, a member of the Minnesota Supreme court and an active Legionnaire. On Justice Stone's staff of helpers are found Mayors Nelson and Leach, of the Twin Cities, Lieut. Gov. Louis Collins, and other prominent Legionnaires in Minnesota.

Arrangements for the entertainment naturally fall into the hands of the local committee, but much of those for transportation, housing and delegations must be the part of the national organization. As a consequence, several divisions at national headquarters are busy perfecting preliminary arrangements.

Granting of one fare for the round trip by all rail lines has been practically accepted, and railway officials are busy working out schedules of sale dates. This will permit of the moving of much larger delegations to the convention city, and it is estimated that no less than fifty trains will speed to the Gopher state capital before the middle of September. When the Legion movement passes through Chicago, Kansas City, or Omaha, any line operating service from these "gateways" can handle the special equipment or special train from any line or lines selected as the initial line. In other words, no one line has any advantage over another.

Plans for trains and train equipment are in the hands of department adjutants of the Legion, and the officials are to supply necessary identification certificates. The reduced fare applies to the members of the Legion, members of the Legion Auxiliary and widows of deceased members, to whom the certificates are issued.

All hotel reservations are in the hands of the national organization or department adjutants and no requests for individual reservations will be honored unless so made. Order or preference of delegations, in housing, parade and seating, is determined by action of the national executive committee at the May meeting.

Legion Aids in Having Prison Plant Abandoned

Abandonment of the present prison plant of South Carolina has been recommended by a joint committee from the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary. Among the ills found by the committee in the present prison are the inadequacies of the buildings to care for the prisoners, the impossibility of securing criminal classification and gradation under the present conditions, and entirely inadequate hospital facilities.

The present plant of the state has been operated at no cost to the commonwealth because of manufactured production of inmates, and it is the contention of the Legion's committee that the state should not profit at the expense of bodily comfort and moral welfare of prisoners confined in the institution. The penitentiary turned in a profit of $40,000 during the preceding year, declares the Legion's investigators. No comment on administration of system was made by the Legion committees.

Home for Convalescents Is Soon to Be Opened

The fourth home for convalescent veterans to be opened by the American Legion in New Jersey, will soon be ready to receive patients. The new home, which is located at Millville, will serve veterans of Atlantic, Cumberland and Cape May counties. The homes are designed to serve men who have been discharged from government hospitals, but whose condition is such that they may not immediately return to civil life. The project is financed by the Legion.

Gave Her Ideas

A successful English novelist, Miss Sheila Kaye-Smith, generously acknowledges that in the case of two of her stories a fellow-author supplied the basic idea. "The germ of my novels," she says, as quoted by the writer, "is generally a more or less abstract idea which has somehow got entangled with a place. For instance, 'man who subdues a rough piece of land—country back of Rye,' was the germ of 'Sussex Gorse,' and 'woman farmer—Romney Marsh,' was the germ of 'Joanna Godden.' Both these ideas were given be by W. L. George." Miss Kaye-Smith works quickly and corrects little, but it takes her eight months to complete a story.

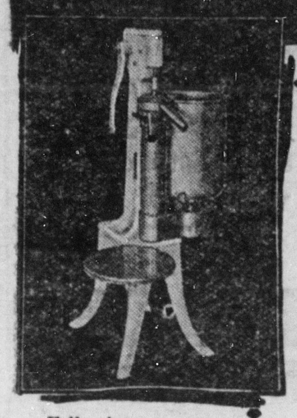
FAMOUS FOR 40 YEARS

30 Days' Free Trial Offer
12 Months to Pay



Following are some of the opinions expressed by various professors and teachers in noted agricultural schools regarding the SHARPLES Allsteel Cream Separator that we are lending to farmers on Free Trial.

At Kansas University—"Well, I like that; it is so easy to turn and clean," and Prof. _____ said "that is the biggest little separator I ever saw."

At Nebraska University — "That is some separator; I can recommend that to any one," while the Profs. _____ said, "It was the greatest separator they had ever seen."

At Missouri University—"That separator will crown the separator business in Missouri when people learn how easy it turns and what it does."

At Ohio University —"If we had not run it ourselves and tested it they would not believe it; sure have a wonderful machine."

At Ames — "You have made a big improvement in separators and are using the right methods, and want one as soon as possible."

Again at Illinois, Wisconsin, Purdue and other State Universities the Professors and authorities call the Allsteel Separator Wonderful.

An Amazing Free Trial Offer

A plan has just been formulated whereby American farmers can try out on their farms the very latest model of the great SHARPLES Separator plant. This free trial plan, in the fewest words, is this:

Reading the Palm

"What," demanded the skeptic, "can you tell by looking at a person's hand?" "You can tell a good deal," said the palmist. "If a woman wears a platinum circlet on the third finger of her left hand she is just married. If she wears a plain gold band the marriage dates further back. If she wears a diamond ring on this finger she's engaged. If she's engaged she's probably in love. That's all women want to know about—love and marriage. Yes, by looking at a person's hand you can tell a good deal and surmise a whole lot more."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Origin of Safety Pin

The first safety pins were long, slender pins of bronze, characteristic of Italy. Evidently some one one day conceived the idea of bending the body of these pins after putting the pin through the garment, so as to hold it more securely. Later an improvement was made by having a disk formation in the bend of the pin, containing several twists of fine wire, which acted as a spring and held the pin in place. The original bow pin is said to have been found in graves dating back to the Tenth century B. C. There have been many evolutions of the material used and the shape and style of the safety pin, but it is interesting to note that the primitive and simplest form is the one which has survived and is used at the present time.

Brain and Growth

Dr. Hrdlicka says that the brain grows after the body's development ceases. The brain develops, with use, to the age of fifty or sixty, in some cases to an extent that the size of the head is actually increased. Aside from this physical development, the body seldom grows after the early twenties, although Dr. Hrdlicka says that under proper exercise, diet and living conditions the body may grow until about the thirtieth year.

Wife Divorces Sexton; Forced to Dig Graves

Camden, N. J.—After testifying that her husband, Walter Stotten, sexton of a country church near Lancaster, Pa., forced her to dig graves and ring the church bell, Mrs. Elsie M. Stotter, twenty-eight, of Sicklersville, N. J., obtained a divorce. The decree was granted by Chancellor Walker.

KEPT HER SON IN KIDDIE'S CLOTHES

Mother Says She Wanted to Keep Boy Near Her.

Kansas City, Mo.—Determined to keep her sixteen-year-old son Walker, from "growing up," Mrs. Edna Du Bois compelled him to wear short trousers and white kiddies' socks, Circuit Judge E. E. Porterfield was told recently.

Because of her great love for him, Mrs. Du Bois refused to allow him to attend high school, complaining that she wanted him by her side always and Walker wasn't permitted to go to work. He accompanied his mother to the homes where she worked as cook and set about the kitchen with her during the day.

"I'm dying for my boy," she screamed in court. "Please let me have him."

On the suggestion of James L. Gilham, chief probation officer, who brought the mother into court, Judge Porterfield ordered the youth sent to the McCune home for boys pending completion of arrangements for him to continue his school duties. Mrs. Du Bois was sent to a hospital for observation.

Husband Fights Duel With Wife in Street

Baltimore.—While groups of school children were passing, Walter Albers stood behind his automobile in front of his home recently and fought a pistol duel with his wife, Mrs. Marie Albers, who fired at him through a window in the house.

Neither was injured, though the woman is said to have fired four shots, and Albers returned the fire. When his wife had emptied her pistol Albers jumped into his car, which had two windows smashed by bullets, and drove away.

According to the story told by Mrs. Albers to the police, her husband, who is manager of a theater, demanded the receipts of the house. She refused to give them to him, and he threatened to strike her.

Then, she said, she ran into another room and got a pistol. Meanwhile he had armed himself and ran down the steps. As he went out into the street, she went to a window on the second floor, opened it and started shooting at him.

After they had heard her version of the affair, the police took her into custody and went to the theater and arrested Albers.

Gang in Prison Makes Auto License Plates

Columbus.—Prisoners in the Ohio state penitentiary have been secretly manufacturing duplicate automobile license plates and smuggling them out through confederates and paroled prisoners, Warden P. E. Thomas admitted recently. All of the state's auto tags are manufactured at the institution.

The practice has been going on for about two weeks, he said, resulting in probably half a dozen sets of tags being smuggled out, some of them to points outside the state. He has been aware of the situation from the first, he said, and until the story became known in Cleveland recently, hoped to apprehend those receiving the tags.

The duplicate tags, it was pointed out at the institution, would aid crooks in preventing identification of their automobiles.

Two Risk Lives to Save Dog in Ice-Filled River

Mattawa, Ont.—The towns-folk of Mattawa turned out recently to watch Tom Montreil, Indian guide, and Lorenzo Tremblay, blacksmith, risk their lives amid the floating ice in the Ottawa river to rescue Moscow, a St. Bernard dog, beloved by all at this northern village.

Moscow, while frolicking with a youngster on the thin ice, broke through. His efforts to get a footing were futile, and the whole town turned out to try to rescue him. His barking grew fainter as he was carried down stream, but he bravely kept his nose on a wafer of ice while Montreil and Tremblay shoved a canoe over the dangerous ice. At last they grabbed the dog as he was about to sink and brought him back to land.

Chemist Succumbs With Wealth Within Reach

Baltimore, Md.—With wealth within reach, Henry Martine, an aged chemist, was found dead in his laboratory.

In his desk were many large contracts for medicine made by a formula he devised after ten years of hard work. The contracts represented a sum which would have kept the man in comfort for the rest of his life.

SCHOOL TEACHER'S LOVE FOR FINERY CAUSES DOWNFALL

Former Sauk Center, Minn., Girl Confesses to Theft of $8,000 From Bank.

St. Paul, Minn.—A pretty "Main street" school teacher, who three years ago came to the Twin Cities to escape the tedium of small-town life in Sauk Center, Minn., the prototype of the Gopher Prairie of the Sinclair Lewis novel, faces a bitter penalty for indulging illegally a love of finery and gay companionships. Miss Leila Lewis, twenty-eight, has just confessed to the theft of $8,000 over a period of two years from the funds of the First National bank, where she was a bookkeeper.

For two weeks the bank officials have known of the peculations, but did not make a formal complaint on account of the illness of the girl's mother. Recently Mrs. Lewis' funeral was held.

Of the money taken not a cent remains. A half dozen hats, a few shimmering party gowns, some jewelry trinkets of small value and the memory of free-handed entertaining of her chosen girl companions are all that is left.

University Graduate.

Investigators are having difficulty in reconciling a number of other factors to an ordinary case of a bank bookkeeper who stole. Miss Lewis is a graduate of the University of Minnesota, and friends recall that she was an exceptionally popular student, being a member of the Bib and Tucker, Pinafore, Y. W. C. A. and other organizations.

In Sauk Center, where she went to teach in the high school when she left the university she was a popular member of the town's "younger set," described more or less faithfully in

Made Fake Entries.

"Main Street." She gave up that position, paying $120 a month, to come to St. Paul and work in the bank for a salary of $75.

Miss Lewis confessed that she took the money not with any hope of gain from investments and ultimately replacing it, but simply to enjoy the luxuries that were forbidden to a worker receiving a moderate wage. The stolen funds went for clothes for herself, for elaborate gifts of trinkets and wearing apparel for her girl friends, for taxicab transportation in connection with her frequent parties in chop suey palaces and for her habitual treating of her friends.

Used Clever System.

The defalcations were made possible without discovery only by exceptional cleverness and a sound knowledge of accountancy, bank officials said, for the slightest slip in the system she used would have meant disclosure. Miss Lewis opened a charge account in the name of "Mrs. C. A. Wallace," who she said was her housekeeper, with an exclusive women's wear shop, and drew checks in this name. When they were presented at the bank she destroyed them and made false entries.

At the bank the former school teacher made many friends, and became especially valuable because of her knowledge of foreign languages, which she used to assist in handling the European correspondence.

Apparently Miss Lewis had few men friends. During recent months a young brother has frequently been her companion, but he told the police he had no suspicion that his sister's elastic finances had any other source than her salary. She expressed a hope that ultimately she would be able to replace the amount of the peculations, but her employers say her family has small resources.

Robbers Steal Clothes, Leave Man Naked in Car

Fresno, Cal.—Sheltered from the eyes of a curious world only in scanty side curtains, M. R. Parra, real estate man, was found in a highly embarrassed state of mind, crouched in the back of his machine where he had been stripped and left in his unconventional condition at an earlier hour by two unfeeling bandits. The holdup men got a valuable watch and chain and minor jewelry besides Parra's best suit of clothes.

TEA-ROOM AND GASOLINE GAME

By CHARLOTTE E. WILDER

(©, 1924, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

THERE were Annie's tea-room and Georgie's garage—one was about as good a business proposition as the other, and they faced each other across a highway. Annie offered tea and cinnamon toast and raspberry jam; that kind of thing. There were yellow curtains at the window, with green geese going up purple trees sideways; you know the sort of thing it was—strictly art.

Georgie, on his side of the street, carried the best brand of gasoline and was to be seen running about—a little heavily—and stooping under cars—a little wheezily—and looking across the street—a little too often for the temper of his customers.

Now Annie was blessed with beauty and brains. She could run a tea-room with one hand. Consider the history of most tea-rooms; isn't it generally entitled "'The Decline and Fall'? May 1, Open for Business. June 3, Closed for Repairs; June 23, This Space Will Be Occupied by the Scootum Garage. Buy Soakem Oil."

Not so the Purple Parrot. Three times it closed for repairs and opened with extensions and improvements. Annie herself was not above tripping about with trays, whispering to one customer while she took cash from another and handed cake to a third.

It is easily to be understood, then, that Georgie liked the institution of afternoon tea. He thought Annie ran her tea-room well, but he thought it would be still a better proposition to have Annie run Georgie's tea-room well. So he came around, on an average once a week, to suggest it; but what he said was: "Annie, will you marry me?" Annie in reply always looked deeply touched, but answered: "Georgie, dear, I can't make up my mind to it. If I married anyone, I'd marry you, but I can't see a particular reason for marrying anyone."

Then, one day, just as Georgie had got through his question, quite without hope, she said, calmly, balancing the cake in one hand and the tea in the other, "All right, Georgie, I'm yours. I think June 15 would be a good day for it."

When Georgie came to, later in the afternoon, he was under the car. He wiped the grease out of one eye with the back of his hand and screamed for his young assistant, aged ten, all freckles and elbows. "Keep the shop," he commanded. "Give 'em gas and hold 'em for repairs. Back in ten minutes."

He chose the ring in seven minutes, paid down a fat sum and agreed to hand over the rest on June 25.

The next time he and Annie were taking time off in the little car, he said, casually: "I've sold the garage, honey."

Annie blinked her eyes twice and swallowed once. "But what can we live on?" she asked, with a voice that faded away to almost nothing when it got to the question mark.

George said, with quiet confidence: "We can put the capital into the tea-room; go into it on a partnership basis—expand it." He expanded his chest.

Annie cogitated. She couldn't seem to see George as a partner in that tea-room; unless it was as treasurer. Moreover, she could all too easily see herself, sweeping off an expanded floor space and waiting on more expanded tables.

"Oh," she said.

That night she thought hard and wrote a few letters. Then she slept the sleep of the just.

The first of July, she said casually, as she was sitting close to the driver of the family car: "I've sold the tea-room, Georgie." Georgie's foot came down hard on the accelerator and for a few minutes the world swung around like a spinning top, then it stuck fast, while the nose of the machine cuddled up a tree trunk.

The smallest kind of a voice came out of Georgie's chest. "What—what are we going to live on?" he asked weakly.

"Ask me what I did with the money," she said, firmly, and smilingly.

"What?"

"I bought a garage—the garage. You know."

Georgie did know. Annie went on pensively: "Of course we lost a bit on the transaction, but, after all, that was your fault, and," she added pleasantly, "you can make it up easy with your knack for the business."

Georgie's admiration for her rose to white heat. Annie improved with age, like a fiddle. He'd rather be her garage-keeper than the head of anyone else's tea-room. He sent the car into high, down the long, white road toward home, and he said, as the wind rushed by them: "Sure, I'll have it a going concern in no time."

"Just as you say, dear," said the meek wife. But to herself she said: "I always did want to own a garage."

Baby's Halo

The young mother had just read in a new-thought paper that everyone is surrounded by a halo, the color of which is determined by the temperament of the person. When her husband came home she tackled him on the subject. After settling the color of all her neighbors' halos to her entire satisfaction, she remarked:

"And what about baby Alfred? What color is he, do you think? Pink, I imagine, because he's the pink of perfection."

"Well, my dear," replied her husband caustically, "he may be pink when I'm away, but when I'm home he's the most startling yeller."

DEFEAT OF PINCHOT.

Governor Pinchot, in a statement issued on the eve of Tuesday's primary election, declared that if he were defeated it would be due to opposition of the "wet" forces to him personally. Some of the most prominently active men in law enforcement, notably Mayor Kendrick, of Philadelphia, promptly took exception to the Governor's view of the matter. Several days before the primaries, the Philadelphia "Public Ledger," which has been one of the Governor's foremost champions, frankly declared that if he should be defeated it would be largely his own fault and due in great measure to a situation created by himself. The "Ledger" at the same time pointed out that his defeat could not be attributed wholly to the so-called "wet" forces. In fact, some pronounced "dry" advocates felt that it was a blunder on the part of the Governor to concede to the "wet" forces in Pennsylvania sufficient strength to accomplish his defeat.

Viewed from any angle, it would appear that Governor Pinchot's defeat was due directly to a political situation of his own making. No matter how sincere he may have been for Coolidge, the fact that he refrained from publicly declaring himself for the President until the eleventh hour caused many friends of Coolidge to lack confidence in him. The belief was general throughout the State that the principal reason the Pennsylvania delegation was not publicly on record as for Coolidge weeks ago was because Governor Pinchot was opposed to such a plan, and that his wishes were being deferred to. This fact gave rise to the suspicion that the Governor cherished a secret ambition to become the nominee for President through a stampede in the convention, and that the impetus for such a stampede would be furnished by him on a prohibition issue.

It needed but a spark, such as the Heney incident, to set ablaze the spirit of revolt against the Governor's candidacy for delegate. His defeat at the polls on Tuesday was the inevitable result. If the Governor had any hopes of becoming the Republican nominee for President, they have gone into the discard. Had he early in the situation publicly declared himself for Coolidge, provided of course he was sincerely for the President, the Governor would have gone to the Cleveland convention as the head of the Pennsylvania delegation. As matters now stand, he will have to secure the proxy of some regularly elected delegate to even gain admission to the convention. The dignity of the office of Governor would, of course, preclude his resorting to such a thing, having been decisively defeated for that privilege and honor by the Republicans of his home State.

Few Forest Fires.

This spring there was a minimum of forest fires, according to Chief Forest Fire Warden Wirt, of Harrisburg. He said that late snows, much wet weather and a late spring, with quick growth of early vegetation had made it easier for the forest fire wardens to control the situation and that the result was very few forest fires which likely will mean better conditions for game and wild life in the woods and mountains, indicating a good hunting season next fall and winter.

BREAK WITH PINCHOT

Republican Leaders Charged Governor With Disloyalty.

The long looked for break between the Republican State organization leaders and Governor Pinchot developed last Saturday over the matter of his candidacy for Republican national delegate-at-large. With the announcement that Governor Pinchot's secret attack on Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was in effect a hostile move aimed at President Coolidge, Congressman William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, formally withdrew his support from the Governor and declared himself for Ralph B. Strassburger, of Montgomery County, for delegate.

It is the belief of political observers that the developments of the past week foreshadow a bitter factional quarrel during the remaining period of the Pinchot administration at Harrisburg. It is only reasonable to assume that such a factional fight will be reflected in many ways during the next session of the Legislature.

Congressman Vare, speaking for the Philadelphia Republican organization, stated that he and other influential Republicans had fully intended supporting the Governor for delegate-at-large until Pinchot admitted having secretly recommended the employment of Francis J. Heney, a Democratic attorney, at private expense, to conduct an investigation of Secretary Mellon's department at Washington. This action of the Governor was branded as unquestionably disloyal to the President. On that basis, Congressman Vare declared that he and his friends, who were strongly committed to Coolidge, could no longer support Pinchot.

Governor Pinchot on Sunday issued a statement at Harrisburg in which he charged that Congressman Vare's action was prompted by the liquor interests. He declared that his fight for delegate-at-large would be waged to a finish and that he expected to win out regardless of all opposition. Even before the Philadelphia organization turned against the Governor, it was a matter of public knowledge that many active Republicans in interior counties would refuse to support him for delegate. Allegheny County had always been classed as strongly opposed to his candidacy.

Mayor Kendrick, of Philadelphia, who has waged a fearless campaign against the saloon and for law enforcement in that city, issued a statement taking issue with Governor Pinchot on the latter's contention that the fight against him was prompted by the liquor interests.

"I do not see what else Mr. Vare could have done," said Mayor Kendrick, "for to my mind it was a situation which he had to meet and was not of his making.

"How could an organization go into a convention with a candidate who publicly admitted he had betrayed the confidence of his friends and was guilty of an act of treachery to his party?

"I do not see how Mr. Vare and the Republican organization of Philadelphia could have remained consistent and gone to Cleveland with Mr. Pinchot as one of the seven delegates at large. It was a situation that was not of Mr. Vare's making. The Governor made it himself. The question of 'wet' or 'dry' has nothing to do with the case. To my mind it never did bear any relation to this primary election. It was at all times a question of loyalty to President Coolidge. That is all there is to it now. The Governor, I think, was distinctly disloyal."

WOMAN RESISTED ARREST.

Hits Officer On Head When He Attempts to Search Home.

As a result of his encounter with a member of the "weaker sex," Constable Nathan Frantz, of Philipsburg, is somewhat the worse for wear. Armed with a search warrant, Frantz went to the home of John McKofke, in Rush township, to search the premises for evidence of illicit liquor traffic

Members of the family resisted and in the altercation which followed, Mrs. Helen Rosanowsky, a married daughter of the McKofkes, seized a club and used it over the constable's head. She and her brother, who was also implicated in the affair, were later arrested, and held for court under $1500 and $500 bail, respectively.

THAW DECLARED SANE

Wins Court Trial for Freedom from Asylum in Philadelphia.

Harry Thaw, who murdered Stanford White in New York many years ago, and who escaped paying the death penalty by being declared insane, on Tuesday won his freedom from a Philadelphia asylum following a six days trial in court. The jury which heard the case declared Thaw sane.

Thaw has spent the greater part of his life in asylums. In the recent court trial, prominent neurologists pronounced Thaw sane, while others, equally noted, declared him insane.

A Musical Treat.

The people of Bellefonte will have an opportunity on Sunday evening, April 27th, in St. John's Catholic Church, to enjoy sacred music of the loftiest tone produced in an admirable manner by the famous male choir of St. Columbas Church, of Johnstown. Religion has always gone hand in hand with art. Religious emotion was the source from which sprung the beauty of Gothic Architecture. "Those Poems in Stone" which adorn the continent of Europe were the out-growth of religious sentiment. As religion deals with God, and the things of God, the music developed by it has been the noblest and most beautiful. Centuries of Catholicity have stored up a wealth of beautiful music. An idea of that wealth of beauty may be obtained by hearing this choir on Sunday evening. The leader Dr. Peter McAneny, obtained his musical education in Italy, studying under a teacher by whom most of the present grand opera singers were trained.

Threshermen to Meet.

OVER THE COUNTY

J. K. Confer purchased the Daniel Ripka farm, near Sprill Mills, at public sale. His bid was $3,050.

The county road supervisor has a crew of men employed at quarrying limestone in H. G. Krape's field, near Rebersburg, for use on the roads in that vicinity.

The First National Bank of State College was awarded the issue of State College borough thirty years five per cent bonds at their bid of $101.80.

On account of the unprecedented hay shortage in Penn's valley last year, many farmers in that vicinity are being compelled to buy hay to feed their stock until next season.

A large wool flag was recently donated to the Ladies Civic Club of Millheim by Mrs. L. C. Tobias, of Rockford, Ill., who is a native of Millheim and wished to do her bit for the old home town.

A section of the road between Spring Mills and Millheim is being chipped and piled. It will make a marked improvement as the road had become badly worn and had many rut holes in it.

George Jordan, a prosperous farmer of Georges valley, says that deer are too plentiful in that section for best results in farming. He says the deer get into the fields and destroy too much of the crops.

F. W. Rachau, of Aaronsburg, has disposed of his store to O. P. Smith, who has taken possession. Mr. Smith formerly resided on his farm near Fiedler, moving from it last spring to locate in Aaronsburg.

Ye old-time singing school is again claiming attention in Penn's valley. Luther Musser, of Penn Hall, is teaching a class of some fifty puptis at the St. Paul school house, with two lessons a week. Mr. Musser was quite successful in conducting singing school last year.

Musser E. Coldron has opened his refreshment stands on the top of Nittany mountain, which place he has designated as Grand View park. On nice days, especially Sundays, the place is the mecca for many tourists who stop for a short time and enjoy the beautiful views afforded.

William R. Camp, formerly a well known resident of Centre Hall but for many years a prominent business man of Tyrone, has sold his furniture store and business in that city to Messrs. C. C. and J. C. Reynolds, formerly merchants at New Bethlehem. Mr. Camp will take a well earned vacation from business activities and plans to spend some time visiting old scenes in Penn's valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Meyer, well known residents of Spring Mills, have returned home from Florida, where they spent the winter.

John G. Dauberman, Centre Hall butcher, recently made his biggest shipment of veal calves to various markets, shipping forty veal calves in one week.

Delegates from Centre County attending the State Young People's Conference in Altoona this Thursday, tomorrow and Saturday, will be treated to splendid programs.

The Junior class of the Gregg Township Vocational School recently presented two plays, "Miss Marmaduke's Reign" and "The Knave of Hearts," to large and appreciative audiences.

Picking of Trailing Arbutus, delicate and lovely flower of early spring, is attracting numerous persons to the woodlands and mountains at this season. The flowers do not seem as plentiful as in former years.

Statistics show that Centre County farmers rank among the first in Central Pennsylvania in growing of fruit. The county produced in 1923, 190,100 bushels of apples, 5,259 bushels peaches and 6,180 bushels pears.

Miles Barger, of near the Cross Church at Spring Mills, had the misfortune to have his auto burned. He attended church services at Milroy and had driven home but did not have the car in the garage, when it ignited. It was totally destroyed.

The Union County Commissioners and citizens recently held a meeting to have the road designated as Route No. 306 improved by the State Highway Department. The highway runs through Rebersburg, from Centre Hall and through Millheim and the Fourteen-mile Narrows, through Union County to Lewisburg.

Mrs. Annie M. Furey, of Bellefonte, and her sister, Mrs. Amelia King, of Centre Hall, are visiting in Pittsburgh with their brother, H. W. D. English, prior to his going to the Pacific coast. Mr. English recently underwent a serious operation at the Jefferson hospital in Philadelphia, for hernia.

A corporation to be known as the "Sunset Club" composed of a number of residents of Centre Hall, has purchased an old homestead site in the Seven mountains upon which they intend to erect a club house. Several of the members of this club inspected the Masonic camp at Snow Shoe Intersection and gained information that will be used in planning their camp.

Seriously Ill in City.

James Shilling, who left Bellefonte 25 years ago to locate in Williamsport, was found at his lodging place in that city the other day after he had suffered intensely four days from diabetes. He was unable to speak or move, afflicted so unexpectedly, and could not make known his plight though the landlady passed through the hall by his door frequently. He is a native of Bellefonte and 69 years old. Three sisters—Mrs. William Cox, Mrs. Milton Robb and a Miss Shilling—and one son, Frank, reside here but did not know of his plight until they read it in a newspaper. Gangrene had developed in his limbs and his feet were amputated in an effort to save his life, which is despaired of by the physicians at the Williamsport hospital, where he is a patient.

Changes in Long Distance Telephone Rates

CERTAIN changes in rates for Out-of-Town calls are provided in the new schedules which were filed with the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania on April 1st to become effective May 1st.

Many of the Station-to-Station rates which are now 25c or over will not be increased. Where the rates are changed the increase in most cases is not more than 5c. There is no change on rates of 75c or over.

Person-to-Person calls under the new schedules will be charged for at approximately 40 per cent. more than the Station-to-Station day rates, instead of about 25 per cent. more, as at present. This applies only on calls on which the Person-to-Person rate is less than $1.00.

Howard

The early Easter services held in the Howard Methodist Episcopal church was a splendid success. A goodly number of porsons were there to hear Rev. J. F. Andreas, of Milesburg, who preached an inspiring sermon, and to participate in the sunrise Communion service. At 9.30 the Sunday school met and to the surprise of all, there were 152 persons present,—the largest attendance in many years. Much credit must be given to the venerable superintendent, Wilbur F. Hall, who has served in that capacity for over 40 years, also to the orchestra leader, David Holter, as well as to the efficient teachers and workers. The offering was $17. Our slogan: "Everybody at Sunday school." At 7:30 in the evening the Junior League rendered an Easter program. Despite the fact that the electric storm in the afternoon had put the lights out of commission, the house was crowded. Lamps had to be used. The church was beautifully decorated with Easter flowers. Rev. A. A. Price baptized four infants. The offering was upward of $75.

Communion services were held at the First Reformed church Easter morning.

The ladies of P. O. of A. Camp, No. 155, held a tooreen supper at their lodge rooms on Monday evening.

Albert Robb, after visiting here over Easter, returned to his studies at Franklin & Marshall college.

Howard was visited by two electrical storms on Easter Sunday.

Malcolm Schenck spent his Easter vacation with Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Hoffman, at Pitcairn, returning home on Wednesday.

The first joint consistory of the Reformed church of Nittany Valley charge was held at Jacksonville today (Thursday.)

Boalsburg.

Fred Brouse and Paul Brouse, of Harrisburg, spent Easter at their home here.

Mrs. R. R. Stuart and daughter returned to their home, at Pittsburgh, on Friday, after a visit at the O. L. Mothersbaugh home.

Cyril Zechman, of Pittsburg, was a recent visitor here.

Mrs. Harkins and sons, of State College, spent several days of last week at the Rev. W. J. Wagner home. John Wagner, of Gettysburg, also spent a short time at his home.

Mary Hazel, of Lewisburg, spent the Easter vacation at her home here.

Fred Ishler of Indiana, and Roy Raymond, of Pittsburgh, spent Easter at their homes here.

Cyrus Wagner, of Altoona, was an over Sunday visitor with his parents.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The members of Mrs. Robert Walker's girls gymnasium class will give a demonstration of their class work and recreative games to thetr friends on Monday evening, April 28th, at 8 o'clock. This demonstration will close the class for this season and will give the parents and friends of the girls an opportunity to see the excellent training Mrs. Walker has been giving the girls in body building corrective gymnastics and recreative games. Admission 25c.

Gilbert Shope and Ross Aplin attended the Older Boys Conference at State College last week. They went as delegates from the Hi-Y Club. Seventy-five boys attended the conference, which was declared the best of the three conferences held. Charles Stine was appointed second vice-president of the conference for next year.

The bowling alleys still remain popular and as the warmer weather advances the devotees of the sport are swinging to duck pins as a lighter game for warmer weather. The alleys will be kept open as long as any demand for the game continues.

K. G. E. Meeting.

Bellefonte Castle, No. 357, K. G. E., had as guests on Tuesday evening Grandchief Wm. P. Grander, of Royersford, and Grand-vice Chief G. A. Williams of Tyrone. They were both called upon to make addresses. A number of brothers were present from Centre Hall Castle and Spring Mills Castle. After a very enjoyable evening all departed for their homes at a late hour, as an enjoyable evening had been spent by all those present.

Lightning Strikes Church.

While the congregation of the Methodist church, of Philipsburg, was assembled at the Easter services last Sunday morning, a bolt of lightning struck the spire, extinguished the lights, and showered plaster down on the Easter finery of the assembly. Cool action on the part of the minister and ushers averted a panic, and the service was carried to a close.

Auto Damaged.

As Victor VonGunden was on his way to his home in Pleasant Gap on Wednesday evening, the radius rod came loose on his Ford, and the car becoming uncontrollable, shot up the bank on the left side on the road just beyond Kelley's ice plant, and overturned. None of the occupants received any injuries, but the car was considerably damaged.

Thomas Shaughnessy Dead.

Thomas Joseph Shaughnessy, one of the oldest and best known residents of Bellefonte, passed away at his home on West Logan Street at 12:30 o'clock, last Friday noon, from infirmities due to his advanced age. He was 89 years old. Born in Galway, Ireland, a son of Michael and Mary Connely Shaughnessy, he came to this country when he was 21 years of age and spent most of the intervening time in Bellefonte. For over 20 years he was street commissioner, in which capacity he served the town faithfully. His wife, who was Catherine Flynn, died six years ago. Since then he had been living on Logan Street with his daughter, Miss Catherine Shaughnessy. He is survived by one brother, Michael, who is 83 years old, of Galway, and the following children: John P., Fairmount, Ind.; Thomas, West Charleston, W. Va; Mrs. G. H. Crane, Altoona, Mrs. J. C. Nolan, Tyrone, and Miss Catherine. Funeral services were conducted in the St. John's Catholic Church by Rev Father Downes and burial was made in the Catholic cemetery.

Robert F. Rosenhoover Dead.

Robert F. Rosenhoover died suddenly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Carroll, on Howard street, on Tuesday at 12:30 o'clock, from heart trouble. Deceased was 70 years old and was born in Drifting, Clearfield county, the son of Robert and Mary Rosenhoover. He was married in 1881, to Mary Steinkerchner, and is survived by the following children: Daniel, John, Mary, and Mrs. W. J. Meyers, of Altoona; Mrs. H. P. Kelley, Mrs. Geo. Kelley, and Mrs. Margaret Carroll, of Bellefonte. He is also survived by the following brothers and sisters: Chris and Mrs. Cecelia Mosebarger, of Johnsonburg; Sister M. Scholasticia, of Villa Marie, Lowelsville, O.; Mrs. Mary Swartzel, Mrs. Sarah Steinkerchner, Mrs. Josephine Mosebarger, and Mrs. Tresa Miller, of Drifting, Pa. Funeral services will be held on Friday morning at 10:30 from St John's Catholic church by Father Downes.

Mrs. Sarah Beates Dead.

Mrs. Sarah Ellen Beates, widow of James H. Beates, died at her home at Pine Glenn on Wednesday evening, April 16, from complication of diseases. Deceased was a daughter of John and Elizabeth Bowes. She was born at Pine Glenn and was 86 years old. She was married in 1854 to James H. Beates, and is survived by the following children: Mrs. Mark Pedrick, Hockessen, Del.; Hamilton Beates, Wilmington, Del.: Mrs. Anna Sheeder, and Mrs. C. Y. Wagner, of Bellefonte; and Harry, Edith, Caroline, and Jennie Beates of Pine Glenn. Funeral services were held from the late home on Saturday by Rev. Berkheimer.

George B. Haines Dead.

George Brungard Haines, a native of Centre County, died on April 16, 1924, at his home in Norwood, from hardening of the arteries. He was born at Wolfe Store on August 6, 1849, a son of Jeremiah and Susanna Haines, both deceased. His wife's name was Emma J. Burket. She preceded her husband to the grave. Surviving are the following children: Mrs. Elizabeth Walker, Norwood; W. B. and M. C. Haines, of Rebersburg; and one sister, Mrs. Emma J. Royer, of Rebersburg. Funeral services were held on Saturday and burial made at Rebersburg.

Mrs. Caroline Carter Dead.

Mrs. Caroline Carter, of Centre Hall, died at her home last Sunday from pneumonia. Deceased was born in Gregg township, and was 69 years and one month old. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fiedler and is survived by her husband, Frederick Carter, and one daughter, Mrs. John Lose, of Williamsport. Surviving also is a brother, William Fiedler, of Centre Hall. Funeral services were conducted from the Evangelical church by Rev. Bingaman Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Ellen Payne Dead.

Mrs. Ellen Payne died at her late residence at Roanoke, Va., April 18, at the advanced aged of 94 years. Deceased's maiden name was Ellen Bohn, being a direct descendant of Martha Bohn Washington. Responsibilities
The public are more than users of telephone service.
They, and no one else, provide the money necessary to conduct the business, and look to the business to pay adequately on that investment.
The public tell us what to do, when to do it, and where to do it.
They tell us how much service they want, and when and where they want it.
We take these figures and find out what it will cost to install the telephones, along with the central office equipment, wires, cables and buildings needed.
Then we must go to the public for the new money necessary to finance these additions.
The telephone using public pay us for their service, and they must pay us enough so that we can pay back to the same public, as investors, a reasonable return on the money they put into the business.
Or it might be summed up this way: Telephone rates must be adequate to enable us to make a reasonable return on the money invested in the business. Otherwise the public will not invest the new money needed to give the tremendous amount of new telephone service which is required by the people of this State.

Heirs of an Indian Chief Ask $100,000

Small Amount Deposited in 1859 Grown to Fortune.

St. Paul, Minn.—For more than 60 years the spirit of Little Crow, Sioux Indian chieftain, has rested peacefully in the tepees of his warriors, but his dealings with the white man still bear fruit.

A son and daughter and granddaughter of Chief Little Crow today are seeking to establish their claim to the principal and interest on $2,000 which, they claim, was deposited by Chief Little Crow in 1859 in the First National bank of this city. The warlike chief subsequently left the peace councils and took the warpath against the encroaching whites. He became an outlaw and his money in the bank never was touched, it is claimed.

Odd Story of Lost Legacy.

The certificate of deposit still is in existence, and the money with its thousands of dollars in accumulated interest is waiting possession, according to Mrs. G. Blue Cloud of Minneapolis, a granddaughter and heir to Chief Little Crow.

It is a long and strange story of a lost legacy Mrs. Blue Cloud tells, a legacy born of war, massacre and bloody Indian trails.

The legacy now amounts approximately to $100,000 with interest compounded annually at 4 per cent, it has been estimated.

Following the treaty of 1851, in which lands west of the Mississippi river were ceded to the United States by the Indians, Chief Little Crow received a government allotment of $2,000. This was deposited in the First National bank of this city in 1859, Mrs. Blue Cloud says.

Gave Certificate to Friends.

"The death of Chief Little Crow occurred in 1863, after the massacre of 1862," Mrs. Blue Cloud explained. "He left a certificate of deposit in the hands of friends. Later it was turned over to friends of the chief, and now, we believe, is in the possession of a grandnephew of the chief. His name is Henry Westman and he lives in Santee, Neb."

Eight years ago, according to Mrs. Blue Cloud, proceedings were started in Nebraska to clear up claims to the deposit certificate. Moses Wakeman and Hannah Red Earth, both of Peever, S. D., son and daughter of Chief Little Crow and Mrs. Blue Cloud, granddaughter, made claims as preferential heirs. The investigation dragged for several years, but nothing came of it. Mrs. Blue Cloud claims the certificate of deposit is still in possession of Mr. Westman.

Many weary months has Mrs. Blue Cloud passed in her efforts to establish the claims of herself and the uncle and aunt in Peever. Her own home is in Granite Falls, Minn., but she has come to the Twin Cities where she has made a living doing Indian beadwork.

Chief Born Near St. Paul.

Chief Little Crow was born near the present site of this city in the Indian village of Kaposia. He was chief of the Kaposia tribe. At first he followed the foosteps of his father and lived at peace with the white man. After the treaty of 1851 he began to manifest a spirit of restlessness and a growing feeling of hatred for the whites. Finally he joined an uprising in 1862, when the Indians left the reservation alloted to them in northern Minnesota. There was a general massacre of the whites August 18, 1862, in which 1,000 were slain. The Indians were defeated and dispersed by Gen. Henry W. Sibley at Wood Lake, Minn., September 23, 1862.

Little Crow fled with a small band to Canada. Believing it was his duty to his tribesmen he returned in 1863 and led a war party of Indians into Minnesota. A white settler and his son shot Little Crow to death at Hutchinson, Minn., receiving a reward of $1,000, which had been placed on his head.

The chief's scalp was taken and is now in the collection of the Minnesota State Historical society.

Alaska's Commerce Gains During 1923

Juneau, Alaska. — Ports of Alaska handled the greatest amount of business in their history during the year just closed, according to a report issued by John C. McBride, collector of customs here.

During the year 2,559 vessels entered Alaskan ports, compared with 2,080 the year before and 2,221 in the previous banner year of 1920.

The last twelve months also established a banner period for tonnage handled, both foreign and domestic. In the domestic trade there were 474,885 tons entered and 477,103 tons cleared. In the foreign trade the tonnage entered was 317,866 and that cleared 152,322.

In the domestic trade 1,959 vessels were given clearance papers by Alaskan ports, and in foreign commerce the ships cleared numbered 483.

SHE ARRANGES FIGHTS

Miss Veronica Sullivan, school girl of Lowell, Mass., who started out as a stenographer, later became secretary to Cecil Dodge, president and matchmaker of the Moody A. C., a boxing club, and now is at the helm of the business. Dodge was accidentally wounded while cleaning a gun and Miss Sullivan immediately took over control of the club, arranging all the matches.

Busy Men Dictate Their Love Notes

Public Stenographer Helps Frame Tender Messages.

New York.—A Paris dispatch not long ago carried the information that the last public letter writer had closed up shop for good and all, the inference being that with less illiteracy the world over, people now preferred to write their own love letters. As this was a large part of the corner scribe's job in European countries, he had been forced out of business.

Following close on this news comes word of a public amanuensis in New York city who helps tired business men to indite messages of more or less sentiment to distant loved ones. It is claimed, too, that the making of sentimental phrases for the American man who cannot make them himself, but who still chooses old-fashioned language in which to do wooing, is not unknown to our present-day public stenographers.

Six Footers Inarticulate.

It is the six footer who is the most inarticulate when it comes to written love talk, according to Miss Lillian Anna Wippler of the Waldorf, who has spent six years writing letters for statesmen, industrialists, scholars and just plain business men.

"I can tell by the look of a man the kind of letter he will write," said the composer of endearing lyrics. "A little fellow wearing dapper clothes always uses more flowery language than the six footer. The big man uses short sentences and short words. Tells her in a straightforward way that he loves her and how much. No nonsense about the big ones. The little men write long letters, full of long words and more sentimental."

Are they as sincere? Well, the didn't know about that. She wouldn't say they were insincere. But the six footer seemed to "get over" more with his few words than the other man with his [illegible]orate phrases.

Lovers Not Timid.

Miss Wippler does not think the present-day lover at all timid. "Men shy?" laughed the recipient of intimate confidences. "Never!" No, not even about their sweethearts. They are as natural, she says, when dictating a love letter, as they are when dictating a brief or a contract. To them this love letter business is a job to be done in the best possible way, and if they don't feel equal to it, they find some one to help them. This is where the public stenographer comes in.

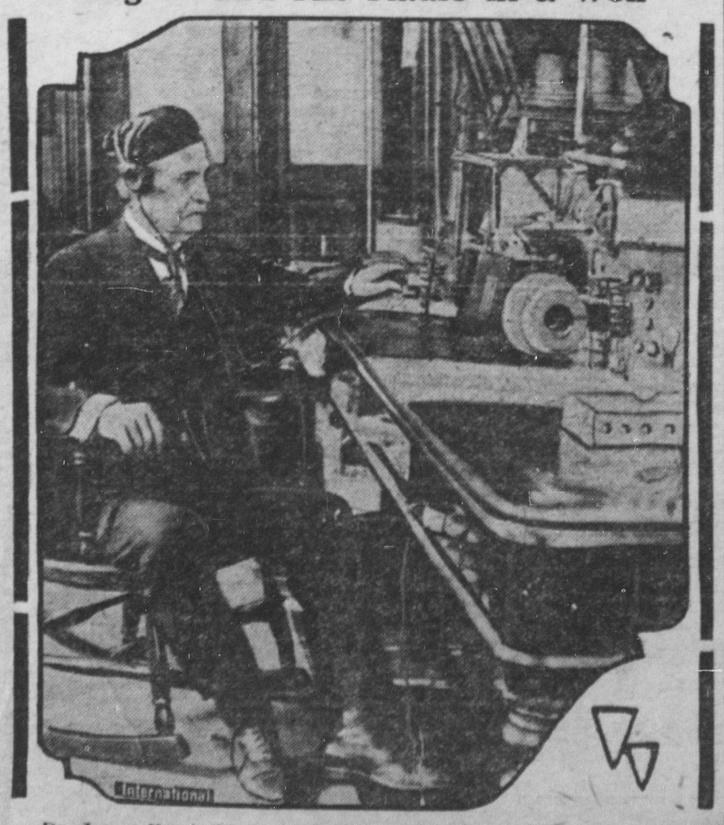
"The up-to-date business man," pursued the young philosopher, "is saying it with flowers and proving it with jewelry. He does little writing. He knows that the girl at home is not so much interested in beautiful words as she is in his latest business deal. The success of that business deal means an early wedding, and that is what she is thinking about.

Copy Letter in Longhand.

"But there are the other kind—the men who do not seem to realize that the necessity for verbal flowers has passed. They do know, though, that they haven't the ability to write those 'flowers,' so when they want to write a love letter they seek the services of a woman stenographer. It isn't always because they want to avoid the work of writing.

"Nine out of ten of them copy the letter in longhand after I have typed it. What they want, I think, is the woman's viewpoint. I can tell, from the careful way in which men watch when they are dictating, that they are interested most of all in my reaction to their letter. If I should show the faintest trace of amusement the man would immediately strike out that particular sentence."

Rogers and His Radio in a Well



Dr. James Harris Rogers, developer of underground and undersea radio communication, has progressed rapidly and successfully with his experiments. He has established his laboratory at Hyattsville, Md., and from the bottom of a well, dug 15 feet into the ground, has proved conclusively that it is possible to transmit and to receive radio messages through earth and water as well as through the air. In this well Dr. Rogers has placed the ordinary antenna, loops and coils that put him in touch with the other side of the world.

More Boy Twins Are Born in Texas

Austin, Tex.—Boy twins and boy triplets outnumbered the girls in Texas last year by a substantial figure, according to reports to the vital statistics section of the state health department. The twins of all nationalities and colors numbered 1,060, of which 567 were males and 493 females. There were recorded 478 white American male twins, 41 Mexican male and 48 negro male twins. The girl twins numbered 404 white, 41 Mexican and 48 negro.

The whole state reported only nine triplets, of which six were white males and three white females.

The births for the state exceeded the deaths by more than 40,000. Births recorded numbered 76,714, while the deaths were 36,538.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness are oftentimes symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

"IF ANYONE WANTS TO KNOW ABOUT TANLAC LET THEM SEE ME"

Says Joseph Baker of Memphis in Praising World's Greatest Tonic—Tells of Recovery.

"If anybody wants to find out about Tanlac, just let them see me," is the hearty suggestion of Joseph H. Baker, 550 North Third St., Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. Baker went overseas with the famous Thirtieth Division during the World War and participated in the St. Mihiel, Valley of Wovres and Argonne drives, having been cited for bravery in action in the Argonne. He is now a popular member of the Memphis Fire Department.

"When I came back from over there," said he, "I was in a mighty bad fix. I had been gassed and after getting home I got down with pneumonia. This left me 'all in,' without appetite, down in weight, liver out of fix, and suffering from constipation, biliousness and headaches without end.

"Tanlac put me to eating as never before, shot my weight up fifteen pounds and made a strong, well man of me—and I feel fine even to this day. I can't say enough for Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

STAYING HOME FROM WORK MEANS MONEY LOST

Many Women Know This by Experience

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Help You As It Helped These Women

Mrs. McDole's Experience

Ludington, Michigan.—"I suffered every month and was very irregular, had headaches all the time, was thin and pale, with no appetite. I had taken all kinds of medicines, and every doctor told me I would have to face an operation before I would be well again. I was doing factory work, and I had to stay at home so much that I was getting discouraged. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did so with good results. I am now feeling fine. I have advised all my girl friends, who have such troubles as I had, to take your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. THRESSA MCDOLE, 426 S. Rath Ave., Ludington, Mich.

Los Angeles, California.—"I was in such a condition that I was scarcely able to walk, even to do my housework. I had no energy, was depressed and often wished to die. I am a chef, but was totally unable to do any cooking. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it with success. After the fourth bottle I felt much better, and after the tenth I never felt better in my life, as it resulted in a complete recovery. I certainly recommend it to all I hear complaining and you can use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. MARY SULLIVAN, 923 E. 46th Street, Los Angeles, California.

Greatly Relieved

Jersey City, N. J.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for cramps and fainting spells. I do office work, and have been in this condition four or five years, having to stay at home from work a day or two at a time, quite frequently. I have taken about ten bottles of it, and have been greatly relieved. I recommend it myself and you may print these facts with my full address."—LOUISE SCHOENFELDER, 112 Woodlawn Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

No matter what your work is, a great deal depends upon your health. It is discouraging to be obliged to stay at home frequently on account of sickness.

Your trouble may be caused by some female weakness, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought relief to many women just as these letters state. For sale by druggists everywhere.

The Art of Selling

The EYES have it too!

The eyes—the windows of the soul—are also the windows of health. The eyes show when you need Beecham's Pills, for constipation deadens their brilliancy and spoils their natural beauty by discoloration. Constipation mars the complexion as well, robbing it of its rose-color, making it muddy and causing unsightly blemishes. Every woman needs Beecham's Pills for the sake of her good looks, good spirits, good health. Beecham's Pills help keep the appetite keen, digestion vigorous, liver active and bowels regular by helping Nature maintain healthy functioning of the digestive and eliminative organs. At all times you can look well, feel fine and enjoy good health by taking Beecham's Pills at the first symptoms of digestive derangement. Remember:

FREE Try Beecham's Pills at our expense. Send your name and address to our Sales Agents, B. F. Allen Co., Dept. 48, 417 Canal Street, New York, for FREE Packet and Booklet "The Way to Health."
